

HKTA seminar: Overview and insights into regulatory requirements for RA13

Ever since the publication of the consultation conclusions which set out the regulatory requirements and expectations of the Securities and Futures Commission (SFC) for the new Type 13 licensed entities, the industry has been looking at ways to ensure continuing compliance with all relevant SFC regulatory requirements.

Meanwhile, the Securities and Futures (Financial Resources) Rules, known as the “FRR”, have been implemented by the SFC to establish the minimum capital and financial requirements that Licensed Corporations engaged in regulated activities must maintain to ensure the stability and integrity of the financial industry.

In this seminar, KPMG will provide an overview of common compliance and reporting challenges faced by Licensed Corporations when complying with the Financial Resources Rules and preparing their FRR return for filing to the SFC. KPMG will also introduce other areas of concern and challenges with respect to governance and oversight requirements, recording keeping requirements, and client money and client securities rules etc.

KPMG's presentation during this seminar will include:

- Governance and oversight arrangements, including that for ROs and requirements under the SFC MIC regime
- Client money and client securities rules surrounding scheme money and scheme securities, including requirements under Schedule 11
- Recording keeping and notification requirements
- Financial resources rules, including the key requirements as well as the common challenges and pain points
