This session will cover:

China's new data law, the Personal Information Protection Law (PIPL), came into effect on 1st November, 2021 and has significant implications for businesses. In this webinar, our speakers will introduce the key concepts of the PIPL and how they interact with other Chinese laws and regulations, explain how the PIPL will impact businesses operating in China and the region, identify areas of variation with other major data laws such as the European GDPR, and provide practical guidance on what companies should be doing to be compliant.

About the speakers:

Barbara Li is the Head of Corporate, leading the TMT and data practice for Rui Bai Law Firm. Dual-qualified in PRC and England & Wales, she has almost three-decades' solid experience working at the Beijing and London offices of leading international law firms as well as in-house role. She brings a wealth of expertise in advising on structuring investment, achieving data and cybersecurity compliance and managing risks related to digital transformation and deployment of emerging technologies such as AI, big data, cloud and blockchain. Barbara also focuses her practice on foreign direct investment, M&As, joint ventures and strategic alliances in a wide range of industries including high-tech, telecom, energy, infrastructure, automotive and high-end manufacturing. She is ranked as a leading lawyer by various legal directories including Chambers, Legal 500, Asian Legal Business (ALB), IFLR1000 and WhichLawyer for multiple practice areas of TMT, FinTech and M&A. She writes and speaks extensively on China data and cybersecurity legal matters and with her industry expertise, Barbara was appointed as the vice chair of the Cybersecurity Sub-Working Group of the EU Chamber of Commerce in China for several years.

Chiang Ling Li is the Head of IP for Tiang & Partners. Her practice has focused on China IP and pharmaceutical law since 1994. She has been in the forefront of the law, leading successful litigation involving patents, trade secrets, copyright, unfair competition, 3-D marks and well-known marks, as well as successfully pursuing criminal enforcement of IP infringement in China. Chiang works closely with industry organizations lobbying for legal reforms, including those concerning patent linkage and data exclusivity, and has been appointed as an arbitrator by CIETAC, HKIAC, ADNDRC, and the WIPO Arbitration and Mediation Center.

Chiang was among the "A-List" of the top 100 lawyers for China (China Business Law Journal). She is also a PLC recommended lawyer in all three categories of life sciences: intellectual property, corporate and commercial (China), and corporate and commercial.
